Memories are made in Cornwall

For many, Cornwall evokes childhood memories of family holidays with wide golden beaches and crystal clear waters surrounding a stunning coastline. Today there's still quaint villages and unspoilt coves but Cornwall has grown up and it now offers so much more.

Foodie hotspot

Thanks to celebrity chefs such as Rick Stein and Paul Ainsworth, Cornwall is now highly regarded as a foodie hotspot. Rich in home grown delicacies, fresh seafood and a growing number of artisan breweries, fresh seasonal produce is making its way onto many a menu. First class restaurants, trendy seafood joints, beachside cafés, tea rooms and cosy pubs can be found a plenty.

Surrounded by sea

There really is a beach for almost every day of the year in Cornwall! Rugged cliffs hug the northern Atlantic coast where the remnants of once hard-working engine houses perch precariously looking out to sea, but there are plenty of beautiful sweeping sands on the north coast too. Creeks and valleys add to the beauty of the more sheltered south where there's also an abundance of sandy coves to be discovered.

Glorious gardens and a rich heritage

The temperate nature of Cornwall's climate has given rise to a number of award winning sub-tropical gardens bursting with colourful and unusual flora and fauna. Although not strictly a garden, the iconic Eden Project has been consistently voted the UK's best tourist attraction. With its mighty biomes housing the world's largest indoor rainforest, it's both inspirational and educational.

Watch out for film crews

The clear light and stunning scenery of Cornwall is a magnet to artists, writers and film crews, keen to capture the beauty of the county and its bewitching backdrop. Take a trip to the Tate St Ives, discover Poldark country or pay a visit to Doc Martin's pretty harbour village at Port Isaac.
